Waters

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Wausau, July 24.—At noon today the loss from the flood was estimated at anywhere from $100,000 to $500,000. First reports of the damage were greatly exaggerated.

Part of the coffer dam at Rostchild six miles north of here was dynamited this forenoon causing the flood to recede very materially and it is expected normal conditions will be restored by tomorrow.

The Prairie River dam five miles north is reported to have gone out also. A dam on the Eau Claire river at Kelley

A report reached here at noon to the effect that a dam at Merrill also went out but this has not been confirmed. Only two city bridges were washed out.

The high water flooded the electric power house and the waterworks plant, rendering them useless for the present, but it is expected that as the water recedes a trifle more these concerns will resume business.

The Brookway dam at Tomahawk went out early this morning causing a tremendous flood to sweep down the Wisconsin river tearing out bridges and flooding this city causing heavy damage estimated in the neighborhood of from $100,000 to $500,000.

Nearly every bridge connecting with Wausau was swept out excepting the railroad bridges which are held down with cars loaded with logs. The water which is several feet above normal is still rising.

Street car service, electric light service and other power is rendered useless.

Up to noon no loss of life had been reported though an unconfirmed story says several farm houses near the bank of the river several miles north of Wausau were swept away.

Recent heavy rains which caused swollen streams it is thought weakened the dams and caused them to give way.

Deluge at Shawano.

Shawano, Wis., July 24.—The deluge of rain that fell all Tuesday night has put Shawano under water. It is estimated that from eight to twelve inches fell. The Wolf river has been raised so high at this point that one end of the dam may have to be dynamited to save the mills of the Wolf River Paper Fibre Company.

The water is steadily rising today. Men are ready with dynamite prepared to destroy the dam if the flood does not subside before reaching the danger point.

No trains arrived here this forenoon. A train on the Northwestern road was ditched near Cecil last night owing to a wash out. Telegraphic communication from outside towns is impaired and many wires are reported down.

Rain Severe.

Manitowish, July 24.—The heaviest rain storm in the history of the city fell during the last 24 hours, the total fall registering 8.13 inches. Tens of thousands of dollars damage was suffered by the washing out of city streets and to farmers.

Ducks Drown.

The Riverview duck farm of William Rahr was probably the heaviest individual loser, 2,000 young ducks, 400 of them being mallard, which sell at $16 per pair were drowned by the floods from the city streets which sewers were unable to carry away. It is likely a suit for damages will be filed against the city.

Many Washouts.

Railroads suffered from washouts, two large barns were struck by lightning and burned and damage to city streets is estimated at $5,000. Ferdinand Veth, a west side resident whose house is situated on a low lying piece of ground was forced to leave his home this morning on a step ladder from a second story window. Dozens of stores were flooded.

Storm at Green Bay.

Green Bay, July 24.—Hundreds of dollars damage was done here last night by an electrical storm. Over three inches of rain fell from eight in the morning until a late hour last night. A wash out occurred on the C. & M. St. Paul road near Cornier delaying train No. 2 for several hours. There was another washout on the Northwestern between Green and Eland Junction. All trains over that branch are today being detained.

Rain at Oshkosh.

Oshkosh, Wis., 24.—Another downpour of rain last night added to the volume of water which had made torrents out of the creeks in Winnebago reported.

MIMIC WARFARE IS
STARTED AT SPARTATwo Camps Begin Maneuvers Today
With Appearance of Active Service Conditions.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis., July 24.—In the mimic warfare maneuvers at Camp Douglas, the force under command of Col. Holway of La Crosse consists of the second and third Wisconsin and the third Illinois regiments National guard, the third squadron of the 15th United States cavalry of Fort Sheridan, one half of the United States ambulance corps from Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and Battery A, of the first Wisconsin artillery.

By breaking camp at daylight the Camp McCoy forces comprising besides the infantry eight companies of cavalry and the field artillery commanded by Col. Gett, of Fort Sheridan, assumed the offensive, but before they have marched far into the interior it is expected the Camp Douglas troops will be under way.

Between the two camps stretch a territory of wood covered hills, berrys, mud roads, and farm houses which are to be the scene of "hard fighting." Long trains of provision wagons lumbering over the hills, regiments marching through corn fields, and ambulances and cannon polluting the side through the mud gave the departure of the troops from here today the semblance of active service.

The first shots were fired by outposts at imaginary spies concealed behind hay stacks. It may be Saturday before the full strength of each is brought under fire. Until then the soldiers are to solve theoretical problems.

GETTLE AT MADISON
FOR A CONFERENCE
WITH THE GOVERNORRosa and Adams of Beloit Also Consult With McGovern in Regard to State Political Situation—Rosa for Assembly.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Wis., July 24.—With both La Follette and McGovern men holding conferences here last night with leaders from different sections of the state, the plans for the coming campaign took another step toward fruition. Gov. McGovern is calling to his office political leaders and candidates from various sections of the state for conferences as to the lineup and political sentiment in their respective communities. The Beloit senatorial district contest was one of the most important matters considered by the McGovern men last night. L. E. Gettle, of Edgerton, candidate for the senate, was the first man to consult with the governor. He is being opposed by L. E. Cunningham, mayor of Beloit, and L. T. Whitte of Edgerton. Later, consultations were had with Judge C. D. Rosa and H. V. Adams, both of Beloit. Rosa said he would announce his candidacy for the assembly immediately in opposition to Simon Smith, three times assemblyman and who has announced that he will run for re-nomination as a Taft Republican.

Among other politicians who conferred with leaders at the governor's office were Senator G. E. Hoyt of Waubesa, and Theodore Kronshage of Milwaukee. Former Senator William H. Hutton of New London and Assemblyman Ray J. Nye, who were here to attend the sessions of the state board of public affairs, discussed conditions in their district with visitors at the executive office.

Walter L. Houser, former campaign manager for Senator La Follette, had a conference with Col. John J. Hannan, the senator's private secretary, here yesterday. They went over the senator's presidential campaign account, which they said would be given at Washington in about ten days. Senator Walter C. Owen of Maiden Rock came to Madison to prepare his statement for publication in the state political pamphlet.

DANGERS FROM FIRE
OBLIVATED BY RAINSState Forester Reports That Lookout
Towers Were Used in North The First of July.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., July 24.—State Forester E. M. Griffith said that the fire danger in northern Wisconsin has been successfully passed for a period of time at least, in a statement today. For the first time the forestry board was compelled to utilize the three lookout towers which have been built in the past year in the forest reserve. From these steel structures men with field glasses can view the surrounding country for forty miles and discover smoke from any fires that may have been started. Weather conditions became such on July 1 that there was danger from fires in the reserve.

"The recent rains have obliterated any fire dangers at the present time," said Mr. Griffith. "Of course we still have the months of August and September in which to guard against fire. There has been plenty of rain in Northern Wisconsin and crop conditions are very favorable here. At the present time we have cruises examining the state land in the southern part of Onondaga county. As these lands have been found more desirable for agricultural than for forestry purposes, they will be offered for sale. Every effort is being made by Onondaga county to secure settlers to take up the lands, especially around Rhinelander."

Mr. Griffith said that hundreds of letters have come from persons inquiring about the camp sites on the shores of Northern Wisconsin lakes which are leased by the state. Nearly a dozen leases were executed during the past week. On these sites the campers are permitted to build summer cottages, the lease running for a period of years.

SELL PEARY'S SHIP
AT AUCTION TODAYArbuckle Wrecking Fleet, Including the Steamer Roosevelt Put Up at Sale in New York.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, July 24.—The Arbuckle wrecking fleet, including the steamer Roosevelt, which was used by Commodore Peary on his North Pole expedition, was put up for sale at public auction today. The sale follows the recent death of Arbuckle, who spent, it is said, almost $100,000 on the wrecking fleet in an attempt to demonstrate the feasibility of his plan to raise sunken vessels by means of compressed air. Mr. Arbuckle employed his method in raising the United States cruiser Yankee after she had gone to the bottom by striking a ledge in Buzzard's Bay several years ago. While the Yankee was being towed to port one of the Navy Department tugs rammed her and she sank, never to be raised again. Mr. Arbuckle blamed the Navy Department for the second loss of the ship, and put in a bill of $90,000 for his services, but he never got it.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, July 24.—Hannis Taylor, former minister to Spain and a writer of international law, published an open letter here today contending that the Hay-Pauncefote treaty is voidable because of the situation arising out of Panama's ceding the canal zone to the United States.

"There is no room for hair splitting on that point," writes Mr. Taylor. "Within the canal zone the United States is sovereign for all the purposes of international law. Under that law it is well settled that a treaty becomes voidable, not void, whenever a change has taken place in the fundamental condition existing at the time it was made."

Characterize Statements at Des Moines Gathering.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Des Moines, Ia., July 24.—"Theodore Roosevelt is fighting that his brother shall not continue to be bound and the progressive party is with him in the fight."

This was the closing sentence in the speech of temporary chairman Frank Randall, before the Roosevelt progressive party convention this afternoon. The speaker in his opening sentences said:

"We are not with Roosevelt; he is with us, with us in our battle for equal political opportunity, with us in our struggle for truly representative government."

Mr. Randall declared that the new party was needed to carry out the promises of the republican party, and continued:

"Fair promises and poor performance have characterized this party under stand-pat manipulation. The majority in the party has stood for the right, but by reason of a stand-pat president influenced by wealth and privilege the right has not prevailed. We need a new party because the bosses are in control of both the old ones."

"They say that Woodrow Wilson is a progressive, but we must not forget there is a stand-pat wing in the Democratic party that will control that party despite anything Woodrow Wilson can do. It will be of no avail to forsake Taft for Wilson."

Criticism of the Chicago convention and national committee which caused the defeat of Roosevelt was followed by the declaration that "we represent something more than a mere rebellion against the action of the Chicago convention. We are revolting against the system of which the Chicago convention was only an incident."

SURE THAT POLICE
WERE BEHIND PLOTDistrict Attorney Whitman Believes
He Will Implicate Police System in Gambler's Murder.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, July 24.—The trial that leads to the men who framed the plot to slay Hermann Rosenthal, the gambler, is slowly clearing and District Attorney Whitman believes today he will be able to show the Police System and even those higher up who were behind the plot to silence Rosenthal before he could make further gambling revelations.

From Harry Vallon, gambler, another one of the occupants of the "murder car," the public prosecutor has learned further facts that implicate "Bald Jack" Rose, close friend of Police Lieut. Becker and who hired the grey auto that took the gun shot. Mrs. Rosenthal, the widow of the gambler told the grand jury that Rose was Becker's closest friend and charged that Rose was the lieutenant's gambling house collector.

With arrests of other gun men the public prosecutor expects to learn enough to involve Rose further in the murder plot and by so doing force him to make a full confession and reveal those who were behind the killing.

Justice Geisrich in the supreme court today dismissed the writ of habeas corpus sued out by "Bridge" Weber, one of the prisoners in the murder case. The hearing of the writ of Sam Paul was adjourned until tomorrow.

There were reports at the district attorney's office that the public prosecutor had information that indicated that the grey auto which figured so prominently in the Rosenthal case had been merely a "blind" and that the actual slayers of the gambler were concealed in the shadows of the hotel and after the killing mixed in the crowd.

The police department today sent out to every city in the country photographs and descriptions of the men wanted for the killing of Rosenthal.

Aron J. Levy, counsel for Shapiro and Libbey said today that his home had been entered last night and he believed some one wanted to do him a bodily injury as there were no evidences that anything had been stolen. Levy stayed at his club until an early hour this morning and upon his return home found the doors of his apartment had been broken open.

EUROPE CONTINUES
NAVAL POWER FIGHTIncreased Armament of All Nations
Will Mark Continued Struggle Between Germany and England.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Paris, July 24.—That the world is not yet on a verge of the cessation of the struggle between Great Britain and Germany for naval supremacy is the prevalent opinion in France after careful study of the recent speech by Winston Spencer Churchill in the house of commons.

The continuation of the rivalry between those two countries causes a not of regret here; but there is an inclination to believe that if it must go on France should learn a lesson from England's procedure and herself increase her navy.

The Matin commenting on the subject says it is in a position to declare that Italy and Austria at the instigation of Germany are about to build additional super dreadnaughts in regard to which nothing has been permitted to transpire.

Italy is to construct six of these vessels each of 20,000 displacement and capable of steaming at a speed of 25 knots while Austria is to build three each of them displacing 25,000 tons.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE.

(CONTRIBUTED)

While the National Education Association developed some lively differences of opinion at the recent meeting in Chicago, they were practically of one mind on the subject of giving woman the ballot, and that body representing more than 1500 educators went on record at their convention as favoring woman suffrage, because woman's teachers realize the responsibility of training youth for citizenship.

Miss Elsie M. Hayes, Professor of Astronomy and applied Mathematics at Wellesley college has been nominated for Secretary of State by the Socialist party of Massachusetts. Miss Hayes is a well known suffragist.

Dr. Halsey Gulick, director of the department of Child Hygiene of the Russell Sage Foundation, gave an interesting address on "Crimping Girls," and the new relation of women to the world. In it he stated woman is as sure to have the suffrage as the tide is to rise, because of her difference from man, and because these differences are fundamental world needs, that she shall bring these differences to the service of the world.

This fact, whether woman wants it or no, the suffrage will force inevitably upon her. The vote is no end in itself. To serve the community in ways in which she is the creator and specialist is the end, and toward this service the women of the civilized world are pressing; most of them unconsciously, a few of them consciously—but all of them inevitably.

MAKE BOTH SIDES OF YOUR DOLLAR WORK FOR YOU.

By W. C. Kenaga.
That headline originated in the brain of the man who has written the convincing summer advertising for HOTEL MARINIQUE of New York City, and which has been running in the newspapers. But it's such a good headline that I've borrowed it for this talk.

How many of us make both sides of our dollars work when we use them? All of us should. All of us should insist on getting 100 cents worth for every dollar, and as much more as is consistent with quality and fairness.

Right now—these last few days of July, both sides of our dollars can be worked to splendid advantage. Every department store, every clothing store, haberdashery, shoe shop and specialty house which is conducted along modern lines is advertising seasonable merchandise at truly wonderful money-saving prices.

Read the newspaper advertising now and make both sides of your dollar work for you!

START WORK PAVING Y. M. C. A. ALLEY

Ground Broken and Excavation Started This Morning—Open North, Main Street to Travel Friday.

Ground was broken and excavation started this morning for the laying of brick pavement in the Y. M. C. A. alley extending from North High to North Academy street to the rear of the Bannison & Lane bakery.

Croft, foreman for Gund & Grahm, the Freeport contractors has a crew of nine men and two or three teams at work. One team is being used to plow up the surface and the others are hauling away the waste. Approximately 600 cubic yards of earth will have to be taken out. Foreman Croft expects to have the excavation done and be ready to haul crushed stone by Saturday. One hundred cubic yards will be needed. The job will require 26,000 bricks and 20,000 of these are on the ground. Brick-laying should begin Tuesday.

The earth being excavated in the alley is being hauled to the corner of Holmes and South Washington street where it will be used to fill Holmes street to its proper width. The Northwestern Railway, which formerly had a shop at this point, and still has a small carpenter shop and track there objected to the work being done, but the city is confident that it is acting within its rights and will continue to dump there. The objection of the railway appears to be that the extra filling will make it necessary for them to put in a retaining wall.

The superintendent of construction of the St. Paul Railway has asked Mr. Croft to put in brick between their tracks at the intersection of North Main street and Fourth avenue. The city will put in bricks on the rest of the intersection as soon as the bridge is finished. North Main from Peace Court to Fourth avenue will be opened to travel Friday.

COUNTRY LIFE CONFERENCE PLANNED FOR NEXT WEEK.

Noted Speakers and Unique Exhibit at DeKalb, Illinois, August 1, 2 and 3.

A state-wide conference on Country Life will be held at DeKalb, Illinois, August 1, 2 and 3, 1912. This meeting will call together representatives of every type of rural organization and discuss all phases of country life. Farmers, teachers, country ministers, grange members, farmers' institute workers, and all persons in any way connected with farm life are being invited to attend.

Program and Speakers.

Speakers of national reputation will address this conference. One special session will be devoted entirely to the country school; another to the country church. On the evening of August first, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley of Washington, D. C., will discuss pure food. Saturday morning, August 2, Dr. Warren H. Wilson of New York, Superintendent of the Presbyterian Department of Church and Country Life, will speak on the country church. Other speakers are Oliver Wilson, Master of the National Grange; Professor William D. Hurd, of the Massachusetts State College of Agriculture; Professor Edward J. Ward, "social engineer" of the University of Wisconsin; Logan Waller Page, Director of the National Office of Public Roads, Washington, D. C.; Miss Josephine Buell, State Grange Lecturer of Michigan; Superintendent O. J. Kern, of Rockford; and William C. Eckhardt, agricultural advisor of DeKalb county.

Country Life Exhibit.

A most unique and helpful feature of this conference will be a Country Life Exhibit. Many local communities and a score of national organizations will contribute to this exhibit. Every phase of country life will be presented. Country church conditions and remedies will be shown by the Presbyterian Department of Church and Country Life of New York. Country school exhibits will be made by the United States Bureau of Education, the Illinois State Department of Education, and the county schools of Page County, Iowa, Winnebago County, Illinois and other counties in Illinois. The Illinois Highway Commission will make a road exhibit and the Illinois Household Science Association will establish a model farm kitchen. Free traveling libraries will be exhibited by the Illinois Library Extension Commission. Further contributions to this exhibit will be made by the State Agricultural College of Massachusetts, the Illinois State College of Agriculture, the State Farmers' Institute, and the Illinois State Grange. Special exhibits showing what is actually accomplished in local country neighborhoods will be furnished by the Clear Creek Community in Putnam County, where the famous John Swane Consolidated School is located, and also by the DuPage Community in Will county, where Rev. Matthew B. McNitt's remarkable country church is situated. Country communities and organizations in all parts of the state are invited to contribute to this exhibit.

Country Life Progress.

This Country Life Conference is the second annual meeting of the Illinois Federation for Country Life progress, a state wide organization designed to unite all rural progress agencies of Illinois in one large comprehensive campaign for the improvement of country life. As an organization the Illinois Federation differs from the ordinary association in that it is an organization of organizations. Its plans and policies have been strongly endorsed by national country life leaders. For complete program and other information concerning this conference and movement, address the secretary of the Illinois Federation for Country Life Progress at Normal, Illinois.

And the Rest Was Trivial.

She—"I don't see any sense in your objecting to Mr. De Bumville being invited to the house." He—"Why, you know he's been shown to be a man of no principle or character, a man who had to leave his country to escape the law." UNCLE IKE BELIEVES HORSES RECEIVE PROPER TREATMENT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, July 24.—Uncle "Ike" Stephenson, the oldest of the senators and who carries his 83 years without a cane and boasts of his ability to eat a square meal a day, said at the White House today, he was thinking of giving up his toga and becoming a physician.

"What's good for a horse is good for man," said the senator to a group which gathered to hear his homely logic. When a horse is sick a veterinarian gives him a pill with aloe in it once a day and I have never suffered from indigestion," he said.

JOINT K. C. PICNIC YOST PARK TOMORROW

Given by Councils of Janesville and Beloit—Extended Program of Amusements Prepared.

Janesville and Beloit Councils of the Knights of Columbus will tomorrow hold their annual joint picnic at Yost Park and with fair weather promised, large numbers of Knights, their families and friends from both cities are expected to attend. An extended program of athletic contests, baseball games, and other amusements has been arranged, and the Bower City band will furnish music throughout the day and for dancing in the evening. Three launches have been hired and will ply on the Rock river all day until 9 p. m. free rides to be given all visitors.

A five-inning base ball game between the Benedicts of Beloit and the married men of Janesville, will begin the athletic program at 2:30 o'clock and a five-inning game will also be played between the regular Knights of Columbus teams of the Bower and Luge clubs.

Foot races for men, women and children will be run immediately after the ball game and cash prizes will be awarded to the winners. Janesville and Beloit teams will hold the usual tug of war, there being a contest for both men and women. A box of cigars will be presented to the winning mens' team, and a generous sized box of candy for the ladies.

A novel amusement for the youngsters has been arranged. Ducks will be turned loose in the river and the first child to catch one will be allowed to keep it. Greased pole with a flag on one end will be suspended over the river and prizes will be given to those who are able to bring back the flag by walking the pole both ways.

Teams representing the two councils will play an old fashioned association football game at 6 p. m. and there will be a dance in the pavilion from 7:30 to 10 p. m. An added attraction which has aroused much interest will be an Irish jig by W. T. Dooley of this city.

TO TAKE IMMEDIATE ACTION ON PAROLES

Governor Has Heard Hearings Before State Board of Control and Can Give Decisions at Once. (SPECIAL TO THIS GAZETTE.)

Madison, July 24.—A number of recommendations for parole were presented to the governor this afternoon by Ralph E. Smith, president of the state board of control. As the governor has heard all the arguments on each side, immediate action is expected. The governor must either approve or reject the applications passed upon favorably by the board.

For the first time in the history of the state, so far as the members of the board of control are aware, the governor has actively participated in hearings before the state board of parole. When the hearings on 68 applications were held at Waupun last week, Gov. McGovern went to the prison and listened to practically all the evidence on each case. A number of the applicants were thoroughly cross-questioned by the governor who took notes of their answers. After the applications had been heard, the governor gave about two hours to prisoners who were anxious to have their work changed; others sought information as to whom they were eligible for parole, and still others conferred as to what work might be obtained for them after their release.

Under the new method of handling prisoners, it is planned to permit those who have complaints to have personal interview with the governor. Pres. Smith said that only a part of the 68 applications were passed upon favorably, and that an application having been denied cannot again come before the parole board until six months has elapsed.

John F. Deitz, whose application for pardon will come up before the governor August 15 for a hearing, is employed in the knitting factory at the state prison. Deitz is doing light work. Most of his time is devoted to the sorting of stockings.

Why She Is Silent.

It is said that women nowadays are less prone than men to weary those they meet with long discourses upon their favorite hobbies, and that furthermore, the beauty doctor is responsible for this feminine peculiarity. The woman absorbed in beauty culture has little time for any other hobby, and the secrets of the toilet are not such as can be discussed with all and sundry.

Evil of Artificial Lakes.

According to a German investigator the artificial lakes that have been constructed at several places in his country decrease the temperature appreciably and cause an increase in the number of foggy days.

NEW GAS LIGHT COMPANY

Sport Snap Shots

by Dan McCarty

When the Cleveland American baseball club purchased Earl Gardner from the New York Highlanders not long ago, they got stung. The first thing Gardner did on joining the Naps was to announce that he couldn't play for a while because he was suffering with a bum knee. It later developed that Gardner's trouble is so grave that he won't be able to get back into the game before the latter part of August.

Del Gainer, first baseman for the Detroit Tigers, who underwent an operation for the removal of a bony tumor on the ulna of the right arm, is out of the hospital. His surgeons say that he will be ready for light work by the middle of August, according to present indications.

The surgeons have brought happiness to Del's heart by informing him that when his arm is cured it won't be stiff any more, but will be just as good as new.

The recent acquisition of Stone and Wall by the Muscatine, Ia., club is said to have added strength to that organization. It ought to.

John King, the pitcher whom the Philadelphia National's recently landed, learned the art of twirling by throwing a bean bag. This was when he lived in Alliance, Neb., and was nine years old. Eight years later he was the big noise in the pitching line in his neck of the woods. When the Phillies found him he was at Sacred Heart college, Denver, Colo., where he had gained the reputation of being one of the greatest strikeout pitchers in the history of baseball.

It was too big a jump for Willie Mitchell. He was playing on the San Antonio, Tex., team when he got call from the Cleveland team in the American league. He accepted, but when he arrived on the scene he found, and the Nap management found, that he wasn't quite big enough for the job. So he has been sold to the Toledo club in the American Association.

It isn't too late for Willie to make good yet. He is only a youngster. As a pitcher he has played some excellent ball, yet he isn't quite in major class. He may get back in the big league yet. We hope he will.

Tommy Gavigan, Cleveland middleweight, has been matched to fight Eddie McGorty, western middleweight, ten rounds in Cleveland the first week in August. Gavigan is working on a farm near Cleveland.

Pitcher Gonzalez, the Brown university wonder, has failed to deliver the goods with the Pittsburgh Pirates, and the club has asked waivers on him. Warner, his side partner, has made good and will be retained.

Bill Sweeney, of the Boston Nationals, is batting way over .300 and is a tower of strength to the Beane. He is second only to Heinie Zimmerman, of Chicago, among National league hitters.

Report has it that this will be the last season that the veteran Jesse Burkett will be in baseball. He has been part owner and manager of the Worcester team in the New England league for several years.

Jesse expect to go into business in Worcester at the close of the season this fall. Kitty Brunsfield talked of as the man to succeed Burkett as the head of the team.

From twenty-five to thirty-five. It took Ray Collins a couple of months to get into condition, but since hitting his stride he has done wonderful work for the Boston Red Sox.

Pitching must be the middle name of the Brown family. The Chicago Cubs, the St. Louis Browns, the Boston Braves and the Athletics all have a pitcher named Brown.

Larry Lejaune, of the Grand Rapids team, has made sixteen home runs this season. He was tried out by Brooklyn last season and sent back to the Central League.

The chances are a number of major league clubs would like to have Harry Krause now that the former Philadelphia star is pitching championship ball for Toledo.

Manager Charlie Carr, of the Kansas City team, and Claude Rossman, of the Minneapolis Millers, are running neck and neck for the batting honors in the American Association.

The Sherman Club, of the Texas-Oklahoma league, has signed a big Indian by the name of Timp who is said to be a wonderful pitcher. Timp and pitcher is a soothing combination.

Nearly a quarter of a century ago Jesse Burkett was one of the leading batters of the National League, and today the same Jesse is the leading swatman of his Worcester team.

J. E. Meredith.

Just watch J. E. Meredith, the nineteen-year-old Mervanburg schoolboy who broke the 300-meter record at Stockholm and, continuing, smashed the half-mile record, too. He has a great future before him in the line of athletics. The speed which he exhibited at the Olympic games was wonderful, and he will doubtless break more records before his athletic career is over.

IMPEACHMENT COMMERCE COURT JUDGE RAISES TO FAME YOUNG WRISLEY BROWN

Wrisley Brown.

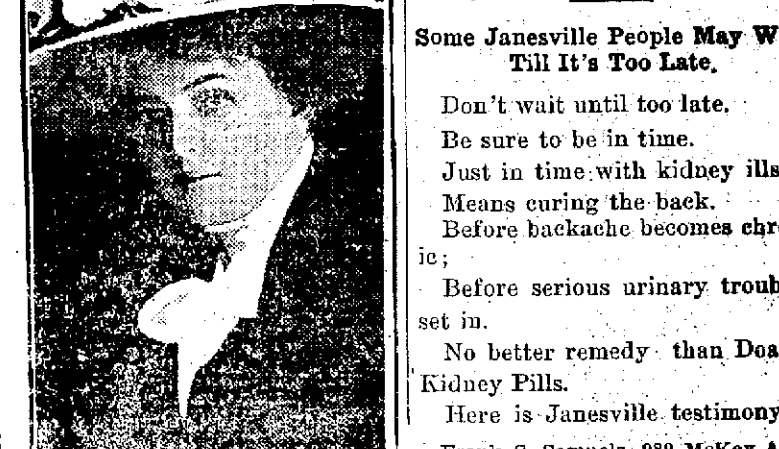

As the pending impeachment proceedings against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the United States Commerce Court bid fair to destroy the reputation of one man, so also they give promise of raising to a position of national prominence another. Wrisley Brown, aged twenty-eight, is the young man whom the Archbald case is raising to fame.

When the original charges were preferred against Judge Archbald, Attorney General Wickard called upon young Brown on the job of investigating them. It was a stupendous task, but how well he succeeded the action of the house of representatives in ordering impeachment proceedings gives eloquent testimony. Brown is modest, but aggressive. He possesses a keen, analytical mind and bids fair to develop into one of the country's greatest lawyers.

Miss Carter's idea is being championed by the famous Saturday Night club, one of the most influential organizations in Atlanta, and is being considered by the municipal authorities of that city.

The barometric depression off the New England coast has deepened, and rain has continued falling in Maine. The depression that was in the Northwest yesterday has advanced to the Lake Region, and a center of low pressure, secondary to a larger one in the Hudson Bay region, has formed over Lake Michigan. This disturbance has been attended by rains in the Lake region and along the northern border to the Pacific. The heaviest fall was 4.38 inches at Green Bay.

An area of high barometer, of no great intensity occupies the Rocky Mountain region, and is accompanied by cooler weather in the Rocky mountains.

Gem Worth Remembering. With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the Nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle and for his widow and orphan—to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations.—Abraham Lincoln.

Worth Remembering. "Remember, brethren," said the good man, as he closed the Bible and gently shook a forensic finger at his hearers, "there are no steam whistles in heaven, and no angel is going to get into trouble for twanging a harp over time."

HOLDING CONFERENCES.

It appears that in this day and age of reform if a candidate wants to have the right to run for any state office, be it assembly or state senate, he must consult Governor McGovern. This is a strange day and age and surely the cry of rule by the people at the primaries is as far fetched as considering the office seeks the man and not the man the office. There is going to be plenty of excitement in Rock county politics this summer after all. There are to be numerous candidates for both the assembly and senatorial offices and some of them are out and out administration men, that is favor McGovern and his income tax and others are Taft republicans and in many cases directly opposed to this law. It is going to be a warm campaign before it is through but every voter who considers his own pocket book, his own best interests, should ask each aspirant for office pointed questions relative to his stand on the income tax law and the present method of conducting the state university. There are two vital questions which affect every citizen and tax payer where it is felt most, in his pocket book. But the idea that McGovern's permission must be secured before a candidate can run, is amusing to those who have listened to the preachings of reformers that the people should rule.

"LITTLE" JAPAN.

Whenever anything happens which directs attention especially to Japan there is much talk of what wonders the Japanese have accomplished, particularly in the way of building up their national strength on land and sea, for "such a little country." It seems that there must be a general impression that the Japanese Empire ranks among the small states of the civilized world in whatever makes the weight and bulk of nations. This is a mistake. Japan is not small in population. On the contrary, in that vital point the Japanese Empire ranks with such states as Austria-Hungary and Great Britain, leading both of them in size. France has only 75 per cent of the numerical strength of Japan, and Italy is beaten by more than 50 per cent. Germany has only 25 or 30 per cent more inhabitants than the Japanese Empire, not including Korea.

It is true that Japan seemed small by contrast with the vast size of Russia, and before the Russian war the island empire looked little by comparison with the huge but helpless bulk of China. It happened that the two wars which brought the military and naval strength and prowess of the Japanese most strikingly to the notice of the world were waged against empires of enormous extent and population but that did not mean that there was any lack of material for big armies in Japan. A country with more than 50,000,000 people can get all the able-bodied men to do its fighting that it can arm and equip and prepare for service.

Japan is not large in area but even by that test it ranks ahead of the United Kingdom and not greatly inferior to Germany and France. It is only the giant neighbors of Japan on the continent of Asia that make the island look so little. In Europe it would seem very different, and there it would also upset the balance of power and create a tremendous reaction in various ways.

IS CRITICIZED.

The Beloit Daily News criticizes the recent gathering of republicans at Janesville when resolutions were passed endorsing the republican platform of the Chicago convention and the candidates named at that time. Yet the Daily News claims to be republican in its doctrines and is supporting a candidate for state senator on the republican ticket. Really it is wearing a mask and it would not be surprising to see it come out flat footed for the democratic nominee for president and follow the instincts of its former days when it passed through the stage of democratic, independent and lastly progressive republican. Meanwhile its principal owner holds an important federal office, the gift of President Taft.

WISCONSIN TAFT.

Even the Milwaukee Journal urges the electors on the republican ticket to vote for the republican nominee, William Howard Taft, if he carries the state at the November election. The Bull Moosers have no hopes of even suggesting to any of these electors the possibility of voting for their candidate, so that it is only justice that they should remain true to the purpose they were named for, to voice the will of the people. That Taft will carry Wisconsin by a handsome majority is certain, no matter how the state ticket goes. The democrats may work wonders in the state affairs but they cannot hope to win the state from the republican ranks.

LITTLE OPPOSITION.

Despite all talk there will be little if any opposition to Congressman H. A. Cooper, the present republican congressman from the first Wisconsin district. The democrats have not as yet demonstrated any decided strength in the first district and their aspirants for office are not men who will cut much figure in the campaign. Mr. Cooper is almost certain to be returned to Washington by the usual republican majority.

"In the candidacy of Wiley Mangum Imboden of Cherokee," says the Houston Post, "the democrats of Texas have a splendid opportunity to honor a true blue democrat and experienced statesman." Yes, and to show that a man can live down even such a name as his.

Nothing could be more natural than the reports that Orozco has planted a big fortune for himself in banks in the United States. He wouldn't be a typical Mexican patriot devoted to saving his country if he forgot to make such provision for days of exile and ease.

They say that Lorimer plans to go before the people in 1914 and ask for re-election to the Senate which recently ousted him in the grounds that he used money to gain his seat in that august body.

Senator Dixon says that Governor Wilson is a rose on a dung pile. Now Senator Dixon knows all about the dung pile because he is shovelling it for the Colonel daily but as to roses, why he is apparently no judge at all.

Judge Karel has begun his state campaign for the democratic nomination without delay. He means to let the voters know he is running at any rate.

The feeblest the insurrection grows in Mexico the greater the outrages it breeds. Cruelty is the natural child of desperation.

Some inventive genius should invest time and money in obtaining ideas on how to prolong the green corn season.

Illinois has settled down to a long hard fight. Deneen has decided to stay put and will remain a republican.

No country realizes better than Canada that there is one little letter between "grain" and "gain."

Harvests that put grain prices down and railroad stocks up hit the right mark.

Judge Hanford applies the recall of the judiciary to himself in one, two, three order.

Getting rich quickly is usually the slowest way of accomplishing the fact.

Congress is busy making the country wonder why it does not quit and go home.

Senator Dixon of Montana is a great little ambassador from Oyster Bay.

Mirage Easy to Be Seen.

The celebrated Pata Morgana, a presentation of natural "moving pictures" on an immense scale which is occasionally seen in the Straits of Messina, is explained by a scientific writer as being a mirage, such as frequently occurs in various parts of the world; "in fact," he says, "one may see a mirage any day by looking through the stratum of air overlying a hot stove, or adjacent to the side of a wall heated in the sunshine." Young scientists will be interested in verifying this statement.

Independence First.

Let your first effort be not for wealth, but independence. Whatever be your talents, whatever your prospects, never be tempted to speculate away, on the chance of a palace, that which you need as a provision against the workhouse.—Lord Lytton.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

Side Talks With Girls.
Natalia: You can make a very good hat frame out of an old bird cage. You can smash it out of shape with an ax and then everybody will believe it is a very expensive creation.

Loretta: You say that you think you have a voice and ask what you had better do with it. The best thing to do with the average voice is to forget it and thereby allow your friends and the public to do the same.
Julia: Don't marry him just because he is a splendid dancer. There are very few good dancers among the directors of the steel trust or the bank presidents.

Amelia: If your nose is shiny, paint it with lampblack.
Little: You say you are thinking of marrying a newspaper man. Don't do it. He has probably got troubles enough without that.

The Nemesis.
Take ye heed, all clever grafters, say no word to any man. Shun all arts of conversation and upon it place the ban. Do not speak above a whisper, do not argue, do not shout, For the dictograph'll get you if you don't.

Watch Out.
If you've got to speak to some one, better talk upon your hands. Or they're liable to have you on a dozen witness stands. You may have a secret session and may think no one's about. But the dictograph'll get you if you don't.

Watch Out.
According to Uncle Abner. One thing is sure. The demand for Roosevelt will never exceed the supply.

It doesn't matter how ridiculous a milliner makes a hat, there is always some woman who will wear it. Since the invention of the automobile, Dan Cupid has had to learn to shoot his arrows at moving targets. Miss Euphemia Judge of Hickeyville is one of the greatest unknown actresses in this country. How dreadful old-fashioned the 1912 model automobiles are. Anse.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

A STORY—SERMONETTE.

When the Union Pacific railroad was first built the highest point in the mountains was at a station called Sherran.

Upon this eminence Oakes Ames, the real builder of the road, put up a granite monument to perpetuate his memory. It was much admired.

Years passed.

Oakes Ames died, and the worms gnawed his bones. The track of the railroad was straightened to shorten the route and avoid a heavy grade, so that today the massive rock pile built by Oakes Ames stands fourteen miles from the present track.

Alas for the pride of man!

You may see the monument far away on the rim of the horizon. In the tangled wilderness the artificial heap of stones as seen through the tourist's spyglass appears a mere speck—pathetic reminder of a man's puny attempt to project himself into futurity.

But Oakes Ames is remembered.

He is remembered in another way—as an inventor and manufacturer. He made the Ames shovel. His "Ames No. 2" or railroad shovel, was built for getting under the sides and ends of the railroad ties. His "tamper," made for tamping ballast, and other tools are used everywhere in the railroad world.

Seldom is the lone rock pile called to the attention of the traveler. Oakes Ames is best remembered by the men of today because he gave the world something useful.

Not every man can build monuments to himself with entablatures of brass and graven words of eulogy. But he can be useful.

He can open a new road or make a farm or build a house or dig a well or plant a tree.

He can train up a child for usefulness.

He can write or say or picture something that will help men to bear their burdens.

He can fight the dragons of Satan away from the homes and haunts of men.

He can brighten lives made miserable by the constant danger of misfortune.

Is not that better than a pile of stones or shape of bronze? Who cares now who graven the pillars of Luxor, or built the cities of the plains of Mesopotamia, or fashioned the vases of Thebes?

Oakes Ames shovel No. 2 is greater than his costly granite memorial.

Strings to Friendship.

"I suppose every man's friendship is worth having," said the young man who is studying politics. "Cherish not the delusion," replied Senator Sorghum. "You must select with caution, owing to the fact that when you accept a man's friendship you incidentally acquire the neutral enmity of everybody who doesn't approve of him."

Composition of Whalebone.

The whalebone is not bone, strictly speaking, but bristles found in the mouth of the whale; by which the animals are enabled to entrap small fish for food.

"Jes' Full o' Take."

The cast off hats and dresses of the women of the family have frequently been offered to the maid in a north side family. Last week, when asked whether she would take a pair of over shoes that were believed to be too heavy for wet weather at this time of the year she replied: "O, yes'm, yes'm, I'se jes' full o' take; I'se raised up never to refuse anything."—Indianapolis News.

From Hickeyville Clarion.

Mr. Lemuel Hilliker is here from the west to visit his brother, Mr. Amos Hilliker, proprietor of our general store, also codfish, ice cream, and notary public. Lemuel has not been able to visit his brother here in nineteen years, as he has been in the penitentiary for that length of time.

Anson Frisby, our well known banker is expecting to become a benefactor soon by presenting his home town with a new house.

Grandma Perkins, who has been in ill health for twenty years, is very poorly at the present writing, and is only able to do light work, such as driving the road grader for the township. It is feared that she will not linger in our midst very long.

Mr. Ben Hanks, the popular and efficient station agent at the railroad depot, informs the Clarion that the trains will now be only two hours and forty minutes late instead of three hours, as formerly during the winter months.

There is some concern over the safety of Mr. Elmer Jones, our congenial orator portrait canvasser, who left this town two days ago on a canvassing trip. It is feared that he has met with foul play, as no picture post cards have been received at the local postoffice for the village milliner.

Mr. Amiasa Jones of our village has been stung again. He sent to a mail order house for a glass eye and he can't see with it any better than he could before.

Elgin Hibbins, who owns a large peach orchard is expecting to have some grafting done, and has been advised to send to Washington for experts in that line.

His Many Titles.

The old caretaker of an Episcopal church, as he sat on a tombstone in the churchyard, dismissed as trivial the question of his proper title. "The good old creed keeps the same for all," he said, "though they may change the words they use. Look at me: here I used to be the janitor. Then we had a parson who called me the sextant. Dr. Thirly gave me the name of virgin. And the young man we've got now says I'm the sacrilege."

Thrifty Teacher.

Just sixty-seven years ago Miss Cordelia Elderkin deposited $10 in a bank, the savings of her first and only year as a school teacher. Miss Elderkin has never touched the principal of this amount, but yearly has drawn out the interests on the same. The money at the present time is on deposit in the Bank of Leroy. Miss Elderkin, who is now 82 years of age, started to teach school when she was only 15 years of age. Her weekly salary was $1.—Leroy Gazette.

Chiropractic is now making its appearance far above the horizon of the scientific world. New truths are being brought out in its practice every day. It is necessary for the skilled Chiropractor to keep in touch with these new truths. A thorough Post Graduate Course has just been finished by the local Chiropractor. Now suffering humanity has a greater chance than ever for relief.

Your spine is out of order. A sudden fall, strain, fright, inducing contraction of muscles, etc., produces a subluxation of one or more of the spinal bones, causing them to pinch or squeeze the nerves where they pass between these bones, cutting off or restricting the normal flow of life currents, similar to the pressure on a hose cutting off the flow of water to a plant. The effect in each instance is similar. Your spine is out of order. Don't wait another day. Let the Chiropractor adjust it. Health and happiness will result.

TRUTH TALKS

What makes it possible for you to ride thirty miles on a street car in Chicago for five cents?

Simply large numbers of people carried.

Why can I do dental work for less money than competitors?

Simply because of the large volume of business I am doing.

There are two of us in this office, and we are able to turn out a large amount of work, and we work on a vastly smaller margin than a dentist can who only has a small practice.

He simply has got to have higher prices in order to make a living.

DEMOCRATS PLACE COMPLEE COUNTY TICKET IN FIELD

Prepare For Active Fight for County Offices and For Senate and Assembly—Lathurs For Congress.

At a gathering of forty or more democrats from various sections of the county at the court house park this afternoon, a complete county ticket was decided upon and candidates from both the assembly districts of Rock county, for the state senate from the twenty-second district, and for congress, were placed in the field. Nominations papers for the various candidates were given out and these will be circulated in the various precincts at once in order to comply with the primary law which required that nomination papers shall be filed with the county clerk for all county offices on or before August 1.

The meeting this afternoon was called to order by County Chairman E. H. Connell and the party candidates were placed in nomination by viva voce votes without opposition. Following is the ticket named:

For Sheriff, E. H. Connell, Janesville; for county clerk, Albert Rader, Edgerton; for county treasurer, Clark Palmer, town of Lima; for clerk of the circuit court, D. T. Bener, Clinton; for register of deeds, Frank Hynes, Evansville; for district attorney, R. M. Richmond, Evansville; for state senate, J. F. Hutchinson, Janesville; for assembly, first assembly district, Alexander Paul; second assembly district, Charles Oliver, Beloit; for congress, first congressional district, Matthew Lathurs, Beloit.

The support of the democratic party in this county was enthusiastically voted to H. A. Moehlenpach of Clinton who was endorsed at the recent democratic convention in Milwaukee for candidate of the party for lieutenant governor.

Mr. Buckley attacked the appalling and complicated legislation which has been passed during the past seven years. He found fault with the numerous commissions and on the matter of the income tax law declared that if such a measure was necessary the democrats alone should be the people to frame it. Mr. Buckley was greeted with cheers when he closed his remarks.

DECLINE TO ACCEPT PLANS FOR VIADUCT

Council Fails to Approve Railway's Design for Reconstruction of Franklin Street Trestles.

Plans for the reconstruction of the Franklin street viaduct, submitted to the City Council by the Chicago & Northwestern and Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railways were disapproved by that body yesterday afternoon when brought up for consideration at their meeting. Objection is made to the fact that three supporting pillars are provided for and that the width of the existing roadway would be reduced. The stone abutments of the viaduct are forty-seven feet apart and the viaduct at present is supported on these and a center pillar. According to the new plans the width of the side-walks would be extended to eight feet and a supporting pillar would be placed at the edge of each. This would reduce the traveled roadway six feet, each pillar being three feet in diameter at the base. The council thinks it possible and desires that the viaduct be constructed without any posts obstructing the roadway. Franklin street is the only heavily traveled thoroughfare which does not cross the tracks at grade and it is believed that any changes that would tend to make it less serviceable should be resisted.

COMPANIES BENEFIT BY RAILROAD LAWS AS WELL AS PEOPLE

Secretary of State Frear Defends Wisconsin Railway Legislation As Equitable and Just To Roads.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Knapp, Wis., July 24.—Secretary of State James A. Frear in an address here, the former home of A. R. Hall, the "pioneers progressive," last night made special reference to the progressive laws passed in Wisconsin and commented caustically upon the recent protest from President Pennington of the Soo railway against the Wisconsin railway laws. After praising the railway commission laws and the personnel of the commission itself, Secretary Frear said in part:

"Until recent years the state did not interfere with stock watering propositions or poor business methods, but under the present law no more exploitations like the Wisconsin Central venture will occur to embarrass innocent stockholders and vex the public. This road with all its inherited obligations has been taken over by the Soo railway. With poorer equipment and poorer general facilities than any other large road, it is significant that the capitalization on which the Wisconsin Central was seeking to make earnings was $67,625 per mile compared with $47,870 per mile for the Northwestern railway. In other words, with an actual value of possibly two-thirds that of the Northwestern railway per mile, the Central was capitalized at nearly 50 per cent more, and on that inflated capitalization the president of the Soo road complains because he is unable to make reasonable earnings."

"During the six years ending 1910, 1,441 miles of new road and sidings were constructed in Wisconsin, or 13 per cent of the total trackage. Of this amount, the Soo built only 41 miles, whereas the Wisconsin Central built 204 miles.

"Wisconsin has been generous with the railways operating in this state. It gave the railways over three million acres of land with which to help build their roads. It gave the Wisconsin Central (Soo line) 775,000 acres or practically 1,000 acres for every mile of its railway in the state today. The Soo railway now owns over 400,000 acres of this land grant, as I am informed, which at $10 an acre, a nominal figure, would build a couple of hundred miles of railway similar to that which the Central formerly possessed and would build thousands of wooden awnings and small depots with which to afford protection to the passengers who support the road. It would build several hundred miles of sidetrack with which to enable private shippers to meet the competition afforded by more favored shippers, and the remainder of the land grant will enable the Soo railway to remember that an unreasonable railway president does not always have the final determination in matters of railway construction, service or rates.

"Railway economy and efficiency is the watchword since Mr. Brandeis pointed out the waste now existing under railway management. It is no part of the average man's duty to criticize railway presidents, but it may be well to reflect that while the public supports the railroads as well as the state government, it pays vastly different salaries for the service."

"After many years of technical and professional education, the members of the supreme court of Wisconsin receive $6,000 per year salary under the old law. Does anyone question the average capability of the Wisconsin judges when compared with the Soo railway president? The members of the state railroad commission, with years of business experience, called upon to revise rates, determine service and supervise the roads of the state, receive $5,000 per year each, and the governor of this commonwealth, with responsibilities as great and duties as important as the president of the Soo railway, receives $5,000 for devoting his time and energies to the upbuilding and protection of the entire state, including its railroads. The executive ability, scholastic and professional training of every one of these men will doubtless compare favorably with that of the average railway president, and yet Mr. Pennington, the Soo railway president, receives presumably $25,000 or more a year for his services, paid in part by Wisconsin shippers and passengers under the direction of this Canadian railway's board of directors.

"Mr. Pennington's criticism regarding conditions in Wisconsin is hypocritical. Less bank failures and business failures are had in Wisconsin, according to statistics, than in the average state. The stocks of railways operating in Wisconsin can be placed on the market at better rates than in states where no state supervision is had, and, generally speaking, the railways in Wisconsin are enjoying better business, less petty litigation, and more genuine, helpful support from Wisconsin than from the average state."

Secretary Frear then quoted from a letter from the chief of the land office of the Soo railway to the Wisconsin board of immigration, of which Mr. Frear is chairman. It read:

"Our records (Soo railway) show that between 600 and 700 families moved into our lines in Wisconsin during the year ending June 1, 1912. I believe that Wisconsin is destined to secure more settlers within the next two years than any other state in the union. Wisconsin boosters are doing good work and you are doing your share."

"This remarkably strong letter," added Secretary Frear, "comes from the land commissioner of the Soo railway, and I place his judgment as to conditions and prospects in this state from the standpoint of one who knows and speaks from the records, against the spirit of a $25,000 man who in judgment of irritation denounces a whole state without justification or reason."

Strong protest is being made in South Australia against the continual slaughter of such rare birds as the ibis, the egret, cranes and spoonbills to supply the demands of milliners. The slaughter renders South Australia even more prone to plagues of grasshoppers, and is a prime cause of the decline of its fish resources. As the wading birds disappear the crustaceans that destroy fish spawn increase in multitude.

ceive $6,000 per year salary under the old law. Does anyone question the average capability of the Wisconsin judges when compared with the Soo railway president? The members of the state railroad commission, with years of business experience, called upon to revise rates, determine service and supervise the roads of the state, receive $5,000 per year each, and the governor of this commonwealth, with responsibilities as great and duties as important as the president of the Soo railway, receives $5,000 for devoting his time and energies to the upbuilding and protection of the entire state, including its railroads. The executive ability, scholastic and professional training of every one of these men will doubtless compare favorably with that of the average railway president, and yet Mr. Pennington, the Soo railway president, receives presumably $25,000 or more a year for his services, paid in part by Wisconsin shippers and passengers under the direction of this Canadian railway's board of directors.

"Mr. Pennington's criticism regarding conditions in Wisconsin is hypocritical. Less bank failures and business failures are had in Wisconsin, according to statistics, than in the average state. The stocks of railways operating in Wisconsin can be placed on the market at better rates than in states where no state supervision is had, and, generally speaking, the railways in Wisconsin are enjoying better business, less petty litigation, and more genuine, helpful support from Wisconsin than from the average state."

MARY ELLEN'S WAY

She Induces Mr. Mary Ellen to Give Her Money Gladly for a New Dress

EVERY time I wear that blue silk dress to the Club, a lot of people tell me how nice I look in it," said Mary Ellen.

"You do look nice in it," responded Mr. Mary Ellen.

"I certainly must, considering all the things people tell me. And do you remember, dear, you helped me select it?"

"Did I?"

"Yes, don't you recall it? I was going to get a pink, and you said you thought blue had more character; not pale blue, either, but just the lovely, soft shade this is."

"So I did. I remember now. I always seem to know instinctively what a woman looks nice in."

"You sure do. When I hear the women telling what new dresses they are going to get for next month's dance, I certainly wish they had somebody like you to help them. I bet I'll look as nice as any of them, though I have worn that blue silk there a lot. I don't believe it will look a bit old-fashioned, even among all their smart new frocks."

"H'm! I don't know about that."

"Oh, it'll look all right," said Mary Ellen, brightly. "I'm not fussy like some people about having the very latest style."

"But you don't want to look like a back number."

"N-no. But do you think that looks old-fashioned?" queried Mary Ellen, anxiously.

"You've had it a year, haven't you?"

"Yes. And the styles do change some in that time. The way they are making frocks this season is so quaint, too. I bet if I were to get a new dress for that dance and you planned it for me, like you did this blue one, it would be the prettiest frock there."

Mr. Mary Ellen looked gratified. "White's nice," he said; "isn't it?"

"White's just sweet, and it's awfully fashionable."

"Seems to me white's the thing for summer; it looks so cool. If you take some sort of white stuff and fix it up with lace and some ribbon, you've got just the right sort of summer dress."

"It would be exquisite," exclaimed Mary Ellen, sitting as if entranced. "A dress like that, all filmy and snowy and with delicate lace and a graceful sash would outshine every dress there." She let just a mite of a sigh escape her.

"You get one for that dance," said Mr. Mary Ellen with emphasis. "Go into town tomorrow and get the prettiest frock you can find."

"Oh," exclaimed Mary Ellen with rapture, "how perfectly lovely of you. I'll get just the kind you said and it'll be the smartest dress at the dance."

"You'll be the peach of the crowd," said Mr. Mary Ellen, beaming.

Barbara Boyce

There is a certain kind of woman who markets to the detriment of other people. Everybody knows the kind.

She comes into a meat market, for instance. Immediately her busy finger is poking this and that. She pushes it into a steak. She fishes around in a barrel of some pickled stuff. She takes up a smoked fish, then she fishes several chops. Finally she buys five cents worth of liver and a pound of wieners.

Now every bit of the stuff handled by this woman is made unfit for use by other people. Even when the butcher keeps his wares beyond the reach of such customers, and under cover, the woman who wants to poke things and handle them will manage somehow to get hold of something that she probably hasn't any intention of buying.

This woman is a pest in all kinds of stores. She's the one who nicks up apples with her thumb nail, who prods off a piece of bulk butter with a forefinger, flicks said finger, then breaks off a piece of cheese with the aid of the same finger.

The only remedy, of course, is for the jeweler to have everything out of reach and under cover, and to forbid any handling when he sees it coming, even though he stands a chance of losing that particular customer. If he doesn't he's apt to lose more customers because of his laxness. Most of us don't like to buy other people's germs with our meats and groceries.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

When you are making a cake in which the color is not objectionable, use coffee instead of milk and enjoy the change of flavor.

If you have a faded dress which is too good to throw away and would be unsatisfactory if recolored, try bleaching. Put a heaping tablespoonful of bichloride of lime in a pail full of water and let the garment soak in it over night. In the morning add the same amount of the bleach to another pailful of water and bring to the boiling point; hang out and dry after rinsing well. Usually this will be sufficient to bleach the fabric; if not, soak again.

When face powder is to be placed for the use of a group of women at an evening company, furnish a box of medicated cotton for their use, as each may pull off a small piece and not find it necessary to use a common powder puff.

A convenient arrangement for cooking in the open for campers or picnickers is a heavy piece of wire netting and a piece of asbestos. The wire may be supported on four stones with the fire underneath, and all kinds of cooking and broiling may be done.

A steel crochet hook is a useful utensil to use in pulling out basting threads or finding ends of threads to be tied in fine tucking.

For those who delight in the brown crispiness of the Vienna rolls which are so wholesome, try making them at home. When the bread is very light and ready to mold into loaves, carefully pinch off bits as large as a walnut, drop into greased gem pans. They will be nearly all crust.

For a supper dish on Sunday night, cut rounds of bread, lay on a thin slice of cheese and on top of that a thin piece of bacon. Place in the oven and cook until the bacon is curled and crisp. Serve hot with cocoa.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist

SUGGESTION TO DR. SARGENT.

Dr. Sargent of Harvard University, finding that the young man who lived on the simpler diet, excluding meat, steadily gained over his brother who lived on the mixed diet, does not admit that this test is conclusive. He believes that one can have greater energy and aggressiveness on a diet including fresh meat! Yet all such tests have shown that the exclusion of meat from the diet gives greater physical endurance. It would be instructive as well as interesting if Dr. Sargent would arrange for such an experiment to test the comparative value of the simple diet in a trial of both physical and mental endurance. I can furnish a man who will undertake a strenuous intellectual and physical contest for 30 days or longer, on a single article of food with water only, if he will furnish one who will eat what is commonly regarded as the best furnished by a first-class hotel while doing the same intellectual and physical work daily.

Heart and Home Problems

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson—My husband has a very bad temper which neither of us can control. He gets so angry as to talk to me awfully, and the next minute he is sorry, but says he cannot help it as it is his temper. Could you tell me how to act during these spells?

He also has some friends that he thinks a great deal of, but they are not the best class and I refuse to associate with them. He often says he will call on them without me some day. What shall I do?

When he gets angry, drop everything and walk out of the room. That will keep you from answering back. Some time, when he is feeling good, tell him in a laughing way that your going to give an alarm signal when you see him getting angry, and then get him to agree on what the signal should be. Make it funny—like "Fiddle!" or "Mollies!" or anything that will create a diversion.

As for your husband's objectionable friends, if they are decent people their class should not count with you. Invite the whole bunch to your home some evening, give them refreshments and be such a charming hostess that they will all vote you a good fellow and think your husband the luckiest man on earth. He'll think more of you for it than if you try to cut out all his old friends, and he won't be so anxious to risk losing you in order to keep up with them.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am twenty-five, have been married four years and have two children. It is impossible to get along. My husband is mean, harsh, ill-tempered and goes out and leaves me alone with the children. He is a spendthrift.

I don't know what to do. I can't move myself on account of the children. UNFORTUNATE.

Take the matter before the juvenile court in your city, to compel your husband to provide for the children. Then get to work to support yourself and let him shift for himself.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—Have you ever heard of three brothers marrying three sisters? I have been married three years and we have been very happy until this last marriage, which makes the third. I have heard there will be bad luck come to our side, as we were the second ones to be married.

I never heard of such a foolish superstition! Go right on being happy and don't listen to silly sayings of ignorant people.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) How can I get rid of bedbugs? (2) Please give me a recipe for a good three-layer cake.

A READER.

(1) Pour gasoline freely about bed and woodwork and keep it up until bugs are gone. But don't strike any matches or light any lamps of gas in that room until it is well aired. (2) WHITE CAKE: Two cups sugar, half cup butter, one cup milk, whites three eggs, 2-3 cups flour, one teaspoon vanilla, three teaspoons baking powder, mix in three layers. Frosting: One cup sugar, half cup water, boil till it spins a thread, then beat in white of one egg which has been beaten stiff. Beat till nearly cold, then spread on layers.

MISS FLABBY asks: "I am only 12 and my cheeks are beginning to wrinkle and my eyes are beginning to wrinkle. I would give anything to get rid of them. Miss Flabby, as you are every woman who has few or many wrinkles, whether she is elderly or young, can be assured of getting rid of them. If not all, at least the signs of age, wrinkles and crow's feet. Those who are elderly can be made to look years younger, and the young girl can be made to look older, if she so desires, speedily, gloriously, by the following formula:

In one-half pint of boiling water, pour two tablespoonsful of glycerine. In a few minutes add two ounces of castor oil and continue stirring until all is dissolved. At first it will look like jelly, then it will start to cream. When it does this, remove from the fire and stir constantly until cool. Keep in a tight jar. Your skin should be kept moist at all times with this cream and it should not cost you more than fifty cents. Apply this cream every morning with the tip of the finger, after washing your face with very warm water and soap. Rub well into the skin until the cream has disappeared. This cream will not grow hard.

DELICATE and many others are desperate over a stubborn case of freckles, and a slightly discolored complexion. The following will absolutely render the skin of a beautiful, healthy texture, pure and white as a baby's.

In half a pint of water, add two tablespoonsful of glycerine. Keep stirring, while adding one ounce of zinc oxide, until all is dissolved. Then let cool. If the cream is too thick to pour easily from the bottle, thin it down a little with more hot water. The cream will be white and satiny. After putting in the morning, wash your face with cold water several times for several minutes. Rub this cream on the entire face liberally. Let it stand over night. The face, report this again at night. Any good druggist will sell you an ounce of zinc oxide for not more than fifty cents.

INNOCENCE: You are not the only one who complains of loss of hair and of eye-brows, and thin, poor hair. You will find relief in several minutes' hair, such as you perhaps never expected to get. If you will make up this hair secret and use it faithfully, everything that you think you may be using for your hair.

With a half-pint of water mix half a pint of alcohol. To this add one ounce of benzoin, Shale (dissolved) and it will then be ready to use. If you prefer you can use imported bay rum instead of water and alcohol.

The betanipin you can get at almost any drug store for not more than fifty cents. The ordinary prepared hair ointment will cost you in the store at least one dollar. But this formula makes one full pint of the best hair grower and tonic one can get for the money.

This formula should be applied very freely on the scalp after brushing the scalp thoroughly for a few minutes all over. Rub the ointment thoroughly into the scalp with the finger tips.

REMEMBER: I do not know your age but I do know that the hair must be kept in good condition to retain its former development.

He tried again, and this time struck the earth eighteen inches behind the tee. He made another effort and missed again.

Then he stopped, looked at the ball and said: "Tut-tut! Tut-tut-tut!" "Mister," observed the caddy, "you'll never learn to play golf with dem words!"

Esperanto.

The artificial key-language known as "Esperanto" is the invention of Dr. Zamenhof, a native of Grodno, in Russian Poland, who first produced his system in 1887 by the publication of "An International Language." The leading characteristics of Esperanto are its "simplicity of construction, the facility by which it may be acquired and the practical ease and euphony of its pronunciation," to use the language of its advocates. The alphabet is composed of twenty-eight letters, each letter having an invariable sound, the vocabulary consisting of some 900 roots selected from the most familiar tongues. Since 1887 Esperanto has greatly increased in use, but many think it will never be made to serve the purpose for which its inventor designed it—a universal language.

If THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

The time is not favorable for the starting of new enterprises. The ways to which you are accustomed will be better for you at present. Quarrels or careless conduct will surely react against you.

Those born today will have many obstacles to overcome but if helped in youth by broad minded parents and teachers they will rise gloriously above their surroundings. They will be well liked and happy with their associates.

Linden Many Centuries Old.

The German village of Remborn has a linden tree which is said to be more than 1,300 years old.

Some folks probably imagine that I must spend much of my time in pinning. But such is not the case. To anyone who has followed me in my penmanship work in these columns it must be evident that I have but a very few requisites for my dressing-table.

And have no old-fashioned beauty books either, that tell you many impossible and absurd things, and still more difficult ways to do them.

I hold that with the few requisites I have for treating the face, neck, chest, arms, hands and hair, the most exquisite beauty can be and is accomplished.

I have always taken delight in mixing my own beauty requisites, because they are made of the most natural and safe ingredients. I know I am getting exactly what I pay for, and what I need and want.

The majority of women I receive ask me about wrinkles, the falling out of the complexion, the growing of the hair, the removal of superfluous hair, the development of the face and the removal of pimples and eruptions. I will consider them here in regular order.

MISS FLABBY asks: "I am only 12 and my cheeks are beginning to wrinkle and my eyes are beginning to wrinkle. I would give anything to get rid of them. Mr. Justice McKenna, of the United States supreme court, took up golf a time ago, and played at it at the Chevy Chase Club near Washington. He was practicing one day and there was nobody with him except his caddy. He teed up his ball, made all the preliminary waggles he could think of and swiped at the ball. He missed it a foot. He tried again, and this time struck the earth eighteen inches behind the tee. He made another effort and missed again.

Then he stopped, looked at the ball and said: "Tut-tut! Tut-tut-tut!" "Mister," observed the caddy, "you'll never learn to play golf with dem words!"

An old Irishman who had made a good deal of money, but who wasn't very particular about his habits or conduct, lived in Chicago. Finally he died, and his children gave him a fine funeral. They had plenty of money now that the old man was dead, and so they spread themselves. At the church there was elaborate ceremony. HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Henrietta D. Grauel

Dear Culinary Editor:

Won't you please publish some menus that could be used by a club of eight girls, of which I am one, for an afternoon luncheon? We would like a color scheme. Could you also tell us how to have a "box social" and what to put in the boxes?

MISS AMY MARCH,
Secretary Louisa Alcott Club.

Of course we are delighted to help these little women. How would a sunshine luncheon do? Yellow roses, or black-eyed Susans or double sunflowers will do for decorations; as for the "eats" the principal thing is to have enough of everything. A cold luncheon is best suited for this season and it would be nice if the members of the club could tell their guests that they prepared everything themselves.

Cold tongue Salmon timbales
Current Jelly Veal loaf
Chicken salad Waters Cheese
Almonds Yellow Bon Bons

If the girls each invite their Larrys add orange cake and maple fudge to the menu.

If the above menu seems too simple, perhaps this one will offer some suggestion.

Pineapple ice
Cream of corn soup
Chicken suetlets White sauce
Rice croquettes
Devil's food Kisses Angel food
Ice cream and coffee.

If the recipes for any of the above dishes are wanted send for them and they will be forwarded.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

will do wonders in changing her opinions concerning mankind and encourage her to improve her appearance in the hope of better things coming.

Woman won't sacrifice her hair even for votes. It's her crowning glory and she knows it. She wouldn't look like the clipped and bald-headed critter sitting opposite her at the breakfast table for anything in the world—no matter how much she may worship said clipped and bald-headed critter. And if she wanted to, he wouldn't let her.

Trousers and short hair are the perquisites of masculinity. They are absolutely unlovely, and nobody but a man wants 'em. We may borrow various other articles of his wear—over his socks, we understand, are no longer sacred to him; we may adopt some of his mannerisms and take to ourselves some of his malevolent rights and privileges, but every normal woman will cheerfully leave him his bifurcated garment and his short-haired plate.

Even suffragists say silly things in this silly season.

One is quoted as declaring: "With in a few years women will wear their hair like men."

Will they? Not if we know it! Not if menfolk have anything to say about it—and, vote or not vote, our menfolk are going to have a good deal to say to us about things personal. The fact is that even the most ardent suffragist will continue to think a good deal of what her menfolk think concerning her appearance and deportment—unless she has arrived at that sour-faced stage occasionally achieved by one who has been often disappointed in affairs of the heart. Even then a little flattery and mental chin-chucking

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

The time is not favorable for the starting of new enterprises. The ways to which you are accustomed will be better for you at present. Quarrels or careless conduct will surely react against you.

Those born today will have many obstacles to overcome but if helped in youth by broad minded parents and teachers they will rise gloriously above their surroundings. They will be well liked and happy with their associates.

Linden Many Centuries Old.

The German village of Remborn has a linden tree which is said to be more than 1,300 years old.

Some folks probably imagine that I must spend much of my time in pinning. But such is not the case. To anyone who has followed me in my penmanship work in these columns it must be evident that I have but a very few requisites for my dressing-table.

And have no old-fashioned beauty books either, that tell you many impossible and absurd things, and still more difficult ways to do them.

I hold that with the few requisites I have for treating the face, neck, chest, arms, hands and hair, the most exquisite beauty can be and is accomplished.

I have always taken delight in mixing my own beauty requisites, because they are made of the most natural and safe ingredients. I know I am getting exactly what I pay for, and what I need and want.

The majority of women I receive ask me about wrinkles, the falling out of the complexion, the growing of the hair, the removal of superfluous hair, the development of the face and the removal of pimples and eruptions. I will consider them here in regular order.

MISS FLABBY asks: "I am only 12 and my cheeks are beginning to wrinkle and my eyes are beginning to wrinkle. I would give anything to get rid of them. Miss Flabby, as you are every woman who has few or many wrinkles, whether she is elderly or young, can be assured of getting rid of them. If not all, at least the signs of age, wrinkles and crow's feet. Those who are elderly can be made to look years younger, and the young girl can be made to look older, if she so desires, speedily, gloriously, by the following formula:

In one-half pint of boiling water, pour two tablespoonsful of glycerine. In a few minutes add two ounces of castor oil and continue stirring until all is dissolved. At first it will look like jelly, then it will start to cream. When it does this, remove from the fire and stir constantly until cool. Keep in a tight jar. Your skin should be kept moist at all times with this cream and it should not cost you more than fifty cents. Apply this cream every morning with the tip of the finger, after washing your face with very warm water and soap. Rub well into the skin until the cream has disappeared. This cream will not grow hard.

DELICATE and many others are desperate over a stubborn case of freckles, and a slightly discolored complexion. The following will absolutely render the skin of a beautiful, healthy texture, pure and white as a baby's.

In half a pint of water, add two tablespoonsful of glycerine. Keep stirring, while adding one ounce of zinc oxide, until all is dissolved. Then let cool. If the cream is too thick to pour easily from the bottle, thin it down a little with more hot water. The cream will be white and satiny. After putting in the morning, wash your face with cold water several times for several minutes. Rub this cream on the entire face liberally. Let it stand over night. The face, report this again at night. Any good druggist will sell you an ounce of zinc oxide for not more than fifty cents.

INNOCENCE: You are not the only one who complains of loss of hair and of eye-brows, and thin, poor hair. You will find relief in several minutes' hair, such as you perhaps never expected to get. If you will make up this hair secret and use it faithfully, everything that you think you may be using for your hair.

ELECTOR MUDDLE UP TO THE DELEGATES

New Question Raised in Relation to Method of Their Selection in The State.

Now a new question has been raised in relation to the matter of presidential electors and the filling of vacancies caused by the resignation of electors who do not feel like supporting President Taft, the republican nominee.

It has been assumed that vacancies caused by these resignations would be filled by the state central committee, the same as other vacancies caused by the resignation or death of nominees for state offices. The point is now made that the state central committee has nothing to do with the matter, but such vacancies must be filled by the delegates to the national convention on whom fell the duty of selecting the electors. It is said further that these officials have already been nominated, hence the only power to fill vacancies is that which had the duty of electing in the first place, namely, the state delegation in Chicago.

What the Laws Say.

On the subject of vacancies in state offices the election laws say: "Any person nominated to office may decline and annul the same by delivering to the officer with whom his certificate of nomination or nomination paper is filed, three days before election in the case of city officers, and nine days in other cases, a declaration in writing signed by him and acknowledged before some officer authorized to take acknowledgments.

"Upon such declaration or the death of a nominee the vacancy, or any vacancy caused by the insufficiency of certificates of nomination or nomination papers may be filled in the same manner as original nominations or by the committee representing the party, the chairman and secretary of which, in such case, shall make and deliver to the proper officer for filing a certificate, duly signed, certified and sworn to, as required in the case of original certificates, setting forth the cause of the vacancy, name of the new nominee, office for which nominated and such other information as is required in the case of an original certificate.

Situation is Complicated.

This would seem to throw the filling of a vacancy on the state central committee. In spite of this it is insisted that the vacancy in the case of presidential electors must be filled by the delegates to the national convention. This adds another tangle to the already badly complicated situation. That there will be a number of vacancies to fill is certain. Two already exist and a third is coming. Advice from Wausau say that Dan Mahoney of Stratford, Marathon county, elector from the eighth district, has sent his resignation to the governor. Mr. Mahoney said that after giving the matter careful thought he could not act as an elector "not having a progressive republican to vote for." It is expected that others who feel like Mr. Mahoney will act honorably and resign, so that their places can be filled by other electors who will support the republican candidate for president if they are elected.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

THE BRASS BAND.

(By Howard L. Rann)

THE brass band is a collection of able-bodied citizens who are passionately fond of music in its raw state.

It consists of a leader surrounded by instruments of torture which are never in tune with anything except the bass drum.

Some day somebody will invent a brass band in which the alto and tenor horns will keep in the same key with what is going on about them, and then band music will be better thought of by people who have a sense of intonation has not been stunted in early youth.

The mission of the brass band is to supply enthusiasm for political speakers who forgot to bring any with them.

A stout band, which is liable to explode at any time in several different styles of international pitch, has a very soothing effect when performing in conjunction with a candidate who is explaining Schedule K so that nobody can tell it from a Bach fugue.

The leader of a brass band is at ways a thorough musician who is at home on any instrument, from a B-flat cornet to a riding cultivator. His business is to keep the band in the same block with the original tempo without destroying the lost ensemble.

All band music is played at a rate of speed which would take it around a mile track in 32 seconds, and leaves the performers in a disheveled and blown condition.

The most versatile band instrument is the bass tuba, which has a range of two notes and leaps from one to the other on the slightest provocation.

When a brass band graduates from "The Stars and Stripes Forever" and begins to mingle with Rossini, Meyerbeer and other deceased musical acrobats, it is called an orchestra and is allowed to spray a cultured audience with all of the most popular diminished sevenths.

After a person has been sprayed with the labored utterances of several defunct composers who were not thought much of while they were in the flesh, he will look upon the silver cornet band and its ragtime remarks with new respect.

The Three Guardsmen

... By ...
ALEXANDRE DUMAS

As the Gascon had foreseen, they found no difficulty in obtaining 300 pistoles upon the ring. Still further, the jeweler told them that if they would sell it to him, as it would make a magnificent pendant for earrings, he would give 500 pistoles for it.

Athos and D'Artagnan, with the activity of two soldiers and the knowledge of two assassins, hardly required three hours to purchase the entire equipment of the musketeer.

But when Aramis, Grimaud and purchased Athos had not a son left of his 150 pistoles. D'Artagnan offered his friend a part of his share, which he should return when convenient.

But Aramis only replied to this proposal by shrugging his shoulders.

"How much did the jeweler say he would give for the sapphire if he purchased it?" said Athos.

"Five hundred pistoles."

"That is to say, 200 more—100 pistoles for you and 100 pistoles for me. Well, now, that would be a real fortune to us, my friend. Go and tell him the ring is his. D'Artagnan, and bring back the 200 pistoles with you."

Half an hour afterward D'Artagnan returned with the 200 livres and without having met with any accident.

It was thus Athos found at home resources which he did not expect.

At 4 o'clock the four friends were all assembled at Athos's apartments. Suddenly Planchet entered, bringing two letters for D'Artagnan. The one was a little billet, gently folded, with a pretty seal in green wax, on which was impressed a dove bearing a green branch.

The other was a large square epistle, resplendent with the terrible arms of his eminence the cardinal duke.

At the sight of the little letter the heart of D'Artagnan bounded, for he believed he had seen that writing before, and, although he had seen that writing but once, the memory of it remained at the bottom of his heart.

"Be!" said the letter, "on Thursday next at 7 o'clock in the evening on the road to Chaillet, look carefully into the carriage that pass, but, if you have any consideration for your own life or that of those who love you, do not speak a single word, do not make a movement which may lead any one to believe you have recognized her who exposes herself to everything for the sake of seeing you but for an instant."

No signature.

"Don't go," said Athos. "Between 5 and 7 o'clock the road of Chaillet is quite deserted. It is a snare."

"But suppose we all go," said D'Artagnan. "They won't devour us all four—four lackeys, horses, arms and all!"

"But if it is a woman that writes," said Aramis, "and that woman desires not to be seen remember you compromise her, D'Artagnan, which is not behaving like a gentleman."

"You will remain in the background, and I will advance alone."

"Let us make the trip," said Aramis. "As you please," said Athos.

"Gentlemen," said D'Artagnan, "it is half past 4, and we have scarcely time to be on the road of Chaillet by 6."

"But this second letter," said Athos. "You forget that?"

"Well," said D'Artagnan, "let us see, gentlemen, what are his eminence's commands," and he unsealed the letter and read:

M. d'Artagnan of the King's guards, company Desessart, is expected at the Palais Cardinal this evening at 8 o'clock.

LA HOUENIERE, Captain of the Guards.

"Whew!" said Athos. "There's a rendezvous much more serious than the other."

"I will go to the second after attending the first," said D'Artagnan. "One is for 7 o'clock and the other for 8."

"There will be time for both," said Athos.

"Yes, but the Bastille!" said Aramis.

"Bah! You will get me out if they put me there," said D'Artagnan.

"To be sure we will," replied Aramis and Porthos, with admirable promptness and decision, as if that were the simplest thing in the world.

"Let us go better than that," said Athos. "Do not let us leave him during the whole evening. Let each of us wait at a gate of the palace with a musketeer behind him. If we see any carriage with closed windows and of at all suspicious appearance come out, let us fall upon it. It is a long time since we have had a skirmish with the guards of M. le Cardinal. M. de Treville must think us dead."

"Admirable!" said the young men in chorus.

"Well," said Porthos, "I will run to the hotel and engage our comrades to hold themselves in readiness by 8 o'clock, the rendezvous the Place du Palais Cardinal. In the meantime you see that the lackey's saddle horses."

A quarter of an hour afterward Porthos appeared at the end of the Rue Peron, mounted upon a very handsome horse, the gift of Mme. Coquenard. Mousqueton followed him upon an Auvergne horse, small, but very good looking. Porthos was resplendent with joy and pride.

At the same time Aramis made his appearance at the other end of the street upon a superb English charger; Brizeu followed him upon a roan.

The two musketeers met at the gate, Athos and D'Artagnan watching their approach from the window.

D'Artagnan and Athos came down, got into their saddles and all four set forward—Athos upon a horse he owed to a woman, Aramis on a horse he owed to his mistress, Porthos on a horse he owed to the lawyer's wife and D'Artagnan on a horse which he had purchased and which he owed to his good fortune, the best mistress possible. The lackeys followed.

A short gallop brought them to the road of Chaillet; the day began to decline, carriages were passing and repassing. D'Artagnan, keeping at some distance from his friends, darted a scrutinizing glance into every carriage that appeared, but saw no face with which he was acquainted.

At length, after waiting a quarter of an hour and just as twilight was beginning to thicken, a carriage appeared coming at a quick pace on the road of Sevres. A presentiment instantly told D'Artagnan that this carriage contained the person who had appointed the rendezvous; the young man was himself astonished to find his heart beat so violently. Almost instantly a female head was put out at the window, with two fingers placed upon her mouth, either to enjoin silence or to send him a kiss. D'Artagnan uttered a slight cry of joy. This woman, or, rather, this apparition, for the carriage passed with the rapidity of a vision, was Mme. Bonacieux.

By an involuntary movement and in spite of the injunction given D'Artagnan put his horse into a gallop and in a few strides overtook the carriage, but the window was close shut; the vision had disappeared.

D'Artagnan then remembered the injunction. "If you value your own life or that of those who love you remain motionless and as if you had seen nothing."

He stopped, therefore, trembling, not for himself, but for the poor woman who had evidently exposed herself to great danger by appointing this rendezvous.

The carriage pursued its way, still going at a great pace, till it dashed into Paris and disappeared.

They reached the Rue St. Honore, and in the Place du Palais Cardinal they found the twelve convoked musketeers waiting about in expectation of their comrades. There only they made them acquainted with the matter in question.

Athos divided them into three groups, assumed the command of one, gave the second to Aramis and the third to Porthos, and then each group went and took a position for watching near an entrance.

D'Artagnan on his part entered at the front gate.

"If De Wardes has related all our affair to the cardinal, which is not to be doubted, and if he has recognized me, which is probable, I may consider myself almost as a condemned man," said he to himself, shaking his head.

"But why has he waited till now? Humph! That's all plain enough. Milady has laid her complaint against me with that hypocritical grief which renders her so interesting, and this last offense has made the cup overflow. D'Artagnan, my friend, you are brave, you are prudent, you have excellent qualities, but the women will ruin you."

In this waiting room were five or six of the cardinal's guards, who recognized D'Artagnan, and, knowing that it was he who had wounded Jusseau, they looked upon him with a smile of singular meaning. This smile appeared to D'Artagnan to be of bad augury.

The usher returned and made a sign to D'Artagnan to follow him. It appeared to the young man that the guards on seeing him depart whispered among themselves.

He followed a corridor, crossed a grand saloon, entered a library and found himself in the presence of a man seated at a desk and writing.

The usher introduced him and retired without speaking a word. D'Artagnan remained standing and examined this man. It was the cardinal.

CHAPTER XXX.

A Terrible Vision.

THE cardinal leaned his elbow on his manuscript, his cheek upon his hand and looked intently at the young man for a moment. No one had a more searching eye than the Cardinal de Richelieu, and D'Artagnan felt this glance penetrate his veins like a fever.

"Monsieur," said the cardinal, "there are several branches of the D'Artagnans at Tarbes and in its environs. To which do you belong?"

"I am the son of him who served in the religious wars."

"That is well. It is you who set out seven or eight months ago from your country to try your fortune in the capital?"

"Yes, monseigneur."

"You came through Meung, where something befell you?"

"Monsieur," said D'Artagnan, "this was what happened to me—"

"Of no consequence, of no consequence!" resumed the cardinal, with a smile, which indicated that he knew the story as well as he who wished to relate it. "You were recommended to M. de Treville, were you not?"

"Yes, monseigneur, but in that unfortunate affair at Meung—"

"The letter was lost?" replied his eminence. "Yes, I know that. Since that time many things have happened to you. You were walking one day behind the Chateaux when it would have been better for you if you had been elsewhere. Then you took with your friends a journey to the waters of Forges. They stopped on the road, but you continued yours. That is all very simple. You had business in England."

The Cardinal Looked Intently at the Young Man for a Moment.

"Monsieur," said D'Artagnan, quite confused, "I went."

"Hunting at Windsor or elsewhere. That concerns nobody. I am acquainted with the circumstances, because it is my position to know everything. On your return you were received by an august personage, and I perceive with pleasure that you preserve the souvenir she gave you."

D'Artagnan placed his hand upon the queen's diamond, which he wore, and quickly turned the collet inward, but it was too late.

"The day after that you received a visit from Cavous," resumed the cardinal. "He went to desire you to come to the palace. You did not return that visit, and you were wrong. Seek in your memory for what happened that very night."

"That was the very evening on which the carrying off of Mme. Bonacieux took place. D'Artagnan trembled, and he likewise recollected that half an hour before the poor woman had passed close to him, without doubt, carried away by the same power that had caused her disappearance.

"In short," continued the cardinal, "as I have heard nothing of you for some time past I wished to know what you were doing. I have marked out a plan with respect to you."

D'Artagnan became more and more astonished.

"I wished to explain this plan to you on the day you received my first invitation, but you did not come. Sit down, M. d'Artagnan." And the cardinal pointed with his finger to a chair for the young man.

"You are brave, M. d'Artagnan," continued his eminence. "You are prudent, which is still better. I like men of head and heart. But you have powerful enemies. If you do not take great heed they will destroy you?"

"Alas, monseigneur," replied the young man, "very easily, no doubt, for they are strong and well supported, while I am alone."

"Yes, that's very true; but, alone as you are, you have already done much and will still do more, I don't doubt. Now, what would you say to an ensigncy in my guards and a company after the campaign?"

"Monsieur," replied D'Artagnan, with an embarrassed air.

When He Discovers the Cause.

A man never begins to blame a woman for his downfall until somebody has found him out.

What Makes a Woman.

One hundred and twenty pounds, more or less, of bone and muscle do not make a woman. It's a good foundation. Put into it health and strength and she may rule a kingdom. But that's just what Electric Bitters give her. Thousands bless them for overcoming fainting and dizzy spells and for dispelling weakness, nervousness, headache and tired, listless, worn-out feeling. "Electric Bitters" have done me a world of good," writes Eliza Pool, Dewey, Okla., "and I thank you, with all my heart, for making such a good medicine." Only 50c. Guaranteed by Peoples' Drug Co.

Do not kick about the heat. Wear a smile serene and sweet night and morn; though hot days' discomforts bring they are surely just the thing for the corn. Do not fume around and fret saying that dark days will get all our goats; for we need the gloomy days if we ever hope to raise shredded oats. Don't get ugly, raising Cain, if upon the roof the rain plays its tunes; let the rainstorm fill its date, for it guarantees a great crop of prunes. Though disasters you should stun, there is promise in the same; every evil wind that sighs helps some one to win a prize in the game. When the surgeon saws your bones, why indulge in plaintive groans of distress?

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, July 24, 1872.—Action of a Committee: The common council committee to whom was referred the subject of pay for firemen, held a meeting last night, and agreed to report in favor of granting the following salaries per annum to the members of the department: Chief engineer, $100; 1st assistant engineer, $50; 2nd assistant engineer, $25; hosemen, pipemen, etc., $25; amounting to a total of $1,125. They also agreed to continue the sack company organization.

The Baptist Entertainment: The Baptist Church was full of fair women and brave men, last evening, in both the musical and ice cream departments, and the society realized a generous profit from their efforts to please the public.

W. G. Roberts has sold his residence on the corner of South Main and Jackson streets, in the third ward, and will remove his family to Milwaukee this week. C. S. Jackman is the purchaser.

This is the hottest season experienced here in four years. It was unusually cool here yesterday, however. The thermometer registered only 214 degrees in the shade. Water that was not exposed to the sun almost stopped boiling for a time.

It is hotter today. The brass railing around satan's throne melted, and
